Introduction

Dear Monero Finance Community,

Cryptocurrencies, which made their debut in 2009 with Bitcoin, have gradually begun to play a significant role in our lives. Utilizing a trust-based technology known as Blockchain, cryptocurrencies are increasingly being used as substitutes for physical cash. Today, thousands of cryptocurrencies are being developed and continue to exist using this technology. Over time, cryptocurrencies have been categorized into two main types: Coins and Tokens. Coins are standalone structures that operate on their own networks, while Tokens have emerged as concepts built on smart contracts. Examples of coins include assets like Bitcoin and Ethereum, whereas protocols like Monero Finance can be cited as examples of smart contracts. The growing number of coins and tokens every day indicates the increasing importance of this technology in the future. However, as the user base expands, "trust" becomes a critical issue in this sector, as it does in any other. When investing in these structures built on trust-based technology, it is essential to thoroughly research the projects. To date, we have witnessed and continue to encounter fraudulent news circulating on various social media platforms. Therefore, we kindly urge our esteemed community to exercise caution in their investments.

Best Regards
